NGO Platform

EU Migration and Asylum Policy

The NGOs Platform on EU Asylum and Migration Policy is an informal group of European non-governmental organisations and networks seeking to contribute to the debate on asylum, refugee and migration policy development in the European Union. The Platform was created in 1994 at the initiative of UNHCR. Meeting regularly to share information and to coordinate advocacy strategies, the group is politically neutral and independent. Its participants have an extensive knowledge and expertise on asylum and migration matters. Many have extensive networks within the European Union's Member States and beyond, with member organisations working at national and/or local level with refugees, asylum seekers or migrant communities, others being present in the field in regions of origin.

Platform Members

Currently 22 NGOs belong to the Platform. Membership is open to NGOs which are active in the area of asylum and migration, which are principally based in Brussels and have a European network. UNHCR contributes to the work of the Platform as a facilitator of coordination amongst the NGO members. The Red Cross/EU Office participates as an observer. New applications for membership are discussed and approved in the plenary session of the Platform.

Main objectives of the Platform

The primary purpose of the Platform is to discuss developments and issues of common concern within the EU asylum and migration area. In addition and where appropriate, it aims to coordinate lobbying approaches and information on key questions for decision at EU level. The aim of this exchange is to achieve better co-ordination between its members and establish common approaches, which can in turn better inform the institutions and Member States which benefit from the contributions.

Working methods

Plenary meetings take place approximately every three months, where member organisations share information on latest developments, particular campaigns and activities planned or undertaken on asylum and migration issues.

In addition to the plenary sessions, ad hoc or regular thematic sub-groups on migration and asylum meet between the plenaries. NGOs most active and particularly interested in one specific area join the sub-group for more in-depth discussion and elaboration of complementary strategies.

Minutes of the plenary sessions are taken by UNHCR while minutes of the sub groups are prepared by those NGOs responsible for the group.

One example of an efficient Platform strategy

In 2004, the NGO Platform on Asylum and Migration worked effectively to align strategies relating to two key asylum directives. The Asylum Procedures Directive aims to establish, throughout the EU, minimum standards for asylum determination procedures. In particular, concerns emphasised by the Platform focused on safeguards for applicants, including in relation to safe third country and safe country of origin concepts; appeal procedures; access to legal assistance and other basic requirements for a fair process. On the basis of the lack of sufficient procedural safeguards, a joint call for withdrawal of the Directive was prepared and coordinated through the Platform and signed by many of its members. This joint action was well reflected in the press, with a widely-covered joint media briefing, which seized the attention of Member States. While the directive was adopted by the Council in 2005, the European Parliament has reiterated some of the concerns raised by NGOs in its motion to take the directive to the Court of Justice of the EU. Another successful advocacy initiative is related to the Qualification Directive, which defines common EU criteria for refugee status or subsidiary protection. Negotiations remained deadlocked for some time because of Germany's resistance to extending protection entitlements to people threatened by persecution from non-state agents. Intensive efforts by Platform members in Germany were coordinated with European-level activities and statements. This work was rewarded with the Council's decision to include non-state persecution in the EU's criteria for refugee protection.

What can the NGO Platform offer Members of the European Parliament or other EU institutions?

The Platform offers a wealth of experience on asylum and immigration law, policy and practice at the European and Member State level. Its members have dealt with asylum issues for many years and understand and provide expert advice, research and statistics on asylum and refugee as well as migrants rights. They have expertise in legal and political issues that concerns matters on asylum and migration, which will be particularly important as the EU moves into the second phase of establishment of its asylum system.
